Melinda Gates to Join World Class Lineup at All-Virtual Texas Conference for Women to Promote Equity and Empower Women in Changing Times

Early Bird tickets are on sale now for October 1st event

AUSTIN – Global philanthropist Melinda Gates will join a world-class lineup of visionaries for an all-virtual Texas Conference for Women on October 1st. The event - designed to promote equity and empower women in a changing world - will be held online to balance health concerns with the importance of coming together during a time of tragedy and unrest.

“Our mission to promote inclusion and provide personal growth and professional development through ‘women helping women’ remains steadfast,” said Carla Piñeyro Sublett, Texas Conference for Women Board President. “This year’s Conference will inspire women leaders at a time when we so badly need them, and will provide attendees with timely tools to navigate today’s changing environment.”

Tickets for the 21st annual gathering of the largest conference for women in Texas are on sale now at www.txconferenceforwomen.org. In addition to Gates, distinguished speakers who will give insights and strategies to tackle current challenges and advance equity in work and life include:

- Reshma Saujani, founder and CEO of Girls Who Code, popular TED speaker and author of Brave Not Perfect
- Priya Parker, host of the new podcast from The New York Times, Together Apart
- James Clear, change expert and New York Times bestselling author
- Wade Davis, former NFL player and inclusion consultant
- Valorie Burton, bestselling author and life strategist

The highly interactive Conference also will give attendees opportunities to engage with speakers and each other; support women-owned businesses and women in business through an online marketplace; and participate in a career pavilion and job fair.

Gates, who grew up in Texas, is co-chair of the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation and an advocate for women and girls who last year announced a $1 billion commitment to expand women's power and influence in the United States. She has recently been outspoken about COVID-19's disproportionate impact on women—and the importance of addressing systemic racism.

“Melinda Gates is one of the world's leading voices on behalf of women, and the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation is making important investments in promoting equality, making her message especially important right now,” said Conference Founder and Director Laurie Dalton White. “The events facing our nation and world have magnified many challenges facing women personally and professionally, and that is all the more reason to come together and support one another.”

Melinda Gates is a philanthropist, businesswoman, and global advocate for women and girls. She shapes and approves the foundation's strategies, reviews results, and sets the organization's overall direction. Together, Melinda and Bill meet with grantees and partners to further the foundation's goal of improving equity in the United States and around the world. The Foundation's data-driven expertise and funding for partners developing diagnostics, therapeutics, and vaccines, have been prominent in the battle against COVID-19.
